

Black Market Taxis

The highway traffic board of the provincial government does well to renege with the Edmonton city council about its restrictive policy on taxicab licenses.

Representatives of the traffic board charge that this policy of restricting the number of licenses issued has resulted in as much as $1,500.

The city license inspector denies this charge and declares there is no black market traffic in cab licenses.

The black market aspect of the situation is the smallest part of it. Black market traffic in licenses could be halted at any moment by making those licenses non-transferable.

But where the restrictive policy does the damage is in denying a good taxicab service to Edmonton people.

Most taxicab companies do their best to give a quick and efficient service. But there are not enough cabs to go around.

There are 154 taxicab licenses in Edmonton. There are 126,700 people in Edmonton. That means there is only one cab for every 822 of population.

Edmonton's population increased by 8,600 last year. It may increase another 10,000 this year.

And yet, since the beginning of 1948, only six new licenses have been issued to take care of this increase.

It is not healthy when an industry becomes a monopoly. And while it may be expedient to prevent the inordinate expansion of the larger companies, there is no reason on earth why new operators with one or two cabs should not be allowed to get into the business.

The restriction on licenses has been justified on the dubious ground that the investments of veterans in taxicabs should be protected. It is a foolish argument. For the majority of those who have applied for licenses and have been turned down are war veterans themselves.

There is something not quite wholesome about Edmonton's taxicab situation in which a group of officials are permitted to say who may and who may not operate taxicabs.

The highway traffic board is perfectly justified in its protest. And the bulk of public opinion will support that protest.

Report First, Fare Rate Next

The city council has taken the sensible course in deferring action on the commissioners' request for higher transit fares until the report of Norman E. Wilson is submitted at the end of this month.

On December 29, the commissioners asked that the streetcar tickets for $1 or four for 25 cents be abolished and a new rate of seven tickets for 50 cents be introduced.

As the Edmonton Bulletin pointed out, it was a most improper and untimely request because it anticipated Mr. Wilson's survey and report.

As the Bulletin argued, it was a peculiarly iniquitous attempt to jump the gun on this survey since the cardinal purpose of Mr. Wilson's investigation is to find means of increasing operating efficiency so that revenue might be greater.

A good many Edmonton people are convinced that maximum operating efficiency may increase transit revenue to a point where fare boosts may not be necessary at all.

At any event, to increase fares without canvassing every possibility of increasing revenue through greater operational efficiency would be to inflict a rank imposition on the public.

With living costs at their present level, every cent piled on the household budget in the way of higher fares is a hardship.

If Mr. Wilson finds after proper investigation, that higher fares are essential, Edmonton people will accept his expert decision with good grace.

But until he submits that decision, any action on higher fares is not only premature but intolerable.

Hard to Get Used to It

There is no need for sharp criticism of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King over the fuss he kicked up in Ottawa about his official place of precedence in the Governor General's New Year levee.

Mr. King, so the story goes, arrived early for the reception and enquired about his position in the receiving line. He was told that instead of ranking second to the King's representative, as he did in his former post, he would have to take 16th place.

In spite of the fact that Mr. King himself created this protocol when the precedence of the Hon. Arthur Meighen was in question, he is said to have manifested great indignation and came close to creating a scene.

There is no need to be uncharitable about this embarrassing occurrence.

Mr. King is not the first great figure to find difficulty in reconciling himself to a subordinate position after a long period of power.

The Emperor Charles V abdicated his imperial crown in Brussels on October 25, 1555. He told the great assembly of princes assembled there that he would be a private subject of the new emperor, his brother Ferdinand, and that he relinquished all temporal power.

Yet, not half an hour afterwards when he retired to his tent and found a slender retinue to attend him, he flew into such an imperial tizzy as terrified everybody within hearing.

Mr. King's little indiscretion on New Year's Day has a very distinguished tradition behind it.

The hardest thing in this world to get used to is stepping down. And yet nothing is more common and inevitable.

SITTING ON THE FENCE

Foresees Calamity for British Pub

Old Moore Gubbins, the world famous astrologer, writes:

Although packed from the first day in the last, will be a most interesting and profitable year for the British pub.

There will be a lot of argument about the nationalization of the pub.

Old Moore Gubbins prophesies that they will be nationalized eventually because the pub is its way out.

As a result of them have already lost their character, this won't matter much.

By the time they are nationalized the whole of Britain will have lost its character.

Women strike the first blow at pubs. Doug strikes the second. Middle class strike the third. The final blow will be struck by some future government department.

Cradle of wit and nourisher of genius, the pub, which was once the meeting place for good conversation between a few men, is now a meeting place for women and dogs.

When either of these are not rampant you can hear the noise of little feet trying to find a dirty joke through a symphony concert.

At the end of this boredom is now almost prohibitive, the men who remember the time when they could buy goodness, elegance and entertainment for a shilling.

Old Moore Gubbins foresees that the government will take over the pub through the younger generation who have never known anything better.

Gradually they will be accustomed to tea and rock cakes being served in the pub as a daily line of mindless conversation.

Quiet New Year's Eve Experiment

Was Big Success

SCOTT

Once upon a time there was a moderately young married couple who reached a point where they lived where they Dressed New Year's Eve. They were swollen, swollen, swollen and swollen by Christmas and they confidently dreaded the inevitable repeat performance of seeing the New Year in.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful," said the little woman one night, "if we could just stay home for once and not have to go Out and Have a Good Time?"

At this remark they both suddenly and almost without a word, they said to each other, "Why not?"

Well, one thing led to another and to land (and on New Year's Eve the moderately young couple put the children to bed, built up a nice big fire in the fireplace, opened a small bottle of good wine, put on some quiet music on the gramophone, turned down the light and said to each other, "Well, here we are, New Year's Eve, it's just Five Dollars, they had a Fine Time, and wake up feeling that 1948 might not be a bad year after all."

Now, add this, this is not a fairy story, but a sensational experiment.

They were either getting old or getting smart, but in any case, it seems like a wonderful idea.

Years Past

This momentous decision having been made, we began to feel that this was a small bottle of good wine, put on some quiet music on the gramophone, turned down the light and said to each other, "Well, here we are, New Year's Eve, it's just Five Dollars, they had a Fine Time, and wake up feeling that 1948 might not be a bad year after all."

As Selke, Jr., 'Saw' MacPherson

Large Bud MacPherson is expected to rejoin Flyers in time to see action against Maple Leafs tonight in what promises for a hockey rink in Letbridge.

As everyone knows the hefty young Edmonton rear-guard had two or three cups of coffee in National Hockey league circles at the end of last week. A brief report from Montreal Canadiens had the like-wise hurried effect of hustling the big fellow into a Canadiens' monkey suit for a three-game stretch, under the league agreement.

He saw action against Chicago, Detroit and New York. Also he made a fine impression . . . a very fine one. So much so that it seems entirely likely this season in his swan song with Flyers. For instance here's what Frank Selke, Jr., of the Montreal Forum's publicity department, said this way for readers of The Bulletin.

"Big Bud MacPherson is on his way back to Edmonton after a three-game stint with Montreal Canadiens. Brought up to replace the injured Doug Harvey on the Montreal defence he gave three fine displays . . . indicating a bright future for the bruising rear-guard in the National Hockey league."

All But Bagged First NHL Goal

Young Selke continues:

In his first shot against Chicago—he appeared slightly nervous for about 10 minutes at the start. He quickly settled down, however, and gave a workmanlike display. On his first shot at the net in the second period he came exceptionally close to scoring. He let go a slap shot from the blue-line that Henry (Sugar) Jim Henry, Hawk netminder, juggled and allowed to drop to the ice.

"Henry fell on the rolling disc before it could enter the net, thus depriving him of his first NHL goal. Against the rough and ready Red Wings he kept up the good work and while on the ice for two goals the Wings scored was directly responsible for them."

"In New York Sunday he received his first minor penalty but no damage was done while he was off. Coach Irvin stated he was well pleased with MacPherson's performance giving him credit for one of the best poke-checks he's seen in many a day."

"He carried the puck well out of his own end . . . made several good passes . . . few mistakes. Irvin seen him as a possible Canadian next fall, as does general manager Frank Selke."

"His main fault appears to be his reluctance to throw his weight around . . . but with a couple of breaks MacPherson easily could become one of the best defencemen Canadians have ever had."

"He impressed the experts plenty."

And Now—Smythe Fleming

So much for what the 'head-office' of Flyers thinks of the western boy. And now—for those who might be inclined to look at the Selke, Jr., blurb as just another 'canned' publicity release—here's what Smythe Fleming, well-known local sportsman, who saw MacPherson in action against Detroit, wrote from Montreal:

"Saw MacPherson was immense. He was on the starting line-up with Ken Reardon and looked as though he had been out there with him for years."

"He really stood out."

"They say he played a better game against Chicago but I can't see how he could have. After tonight's game he leaves for home. But Edmonton has lost a defenceman for good."

"Saw MacPherson and Reardon for a few minutes after the game. Ken is the 'whole' Montreal team. Part of the time they were on right wing for power plays."

So much for the Fleming impression.

It seems obvious that MacPherson made the most of his limited opportunities to impress Irvin, Selke and the other Montreal big-wigs.

And considering the overhaul job currently being done on the onetime Flyers' franchise, the 21-year-old product of the Maple Leaf Athletic club puck mill shapes up as a good thing to make that Montreal roster, at least within two years.

Cheers!

Sister of Bentleys Crashes the Spotlight

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Although the chief claim to fame of the Delille, Sask., Bentleys is hockey, they also have a flare for curling. But it was the family of the family that established curling history in these parts.

When Mrs. Ruth Pratt of Winnipeg, sister of Miss Bentley of Toronto Maple Leafs and Doug Bentley of Chicago Black Hawks, curled here Monday she added to the family's accomplishments. She skinned the first western rink ever to compete in the Granite Club bonspiel.

STIRRING BATTLE

Competing in the William Robert trophy and representing the Winnipeg Granite club, Mrs. Pratt bowed out after a stirring effort with a 7-4 Toronto four led by Mrs. T. C. Hudson.

When reporters asked Mrs. Pratt which of her famous brothers was in the NHL, was the better hockey player, she handled nicely with "I wouldn't want to pick one of them, they're both good."

"That way it keeps peace in the family."

SEES MAX VS. DOUG

Mrs. Pratt saw the brothers play together in several National league games while they were teammates with the Hawks but Saturday was the first time she had seen them in opposing clubs.

"It was strange at first but I got used to it. I just sure I like the idea of their being rivals."

LONDON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Crackers of Harlow, whose subjects have accused him of being a spend-thrift with their money, has been fined his costly string of thoroughbred race horses to £4.

A pre-bonspiel favorite, Howard Wood of Winnipeg, went through the preliminaries when he lost in No. 3 event, earlier in the day.

Last year's winner of the cars, Earl Watson, also of Winnipeg, was ousted by Hume, who bowled 165. Burgess secured the large crowd with an easy 13-6 victory.

Rinks reaching the finals in No. 1, 2 and 3 events, split up into two groups of six in a round-robin elimination leading to a final best-of-three series for the cars.

Already qualified for the championship final were the former Dominion champions Billy Rose of Selkirk, Alta., and Al Turner of Assiniboia, Man. Others are Bert Robertson of Edmonton, Willard Cleveland of Fairbairn, Minn., Derrett, T. R. Wright, Dr. C. E. McKellar and Walter Hobbs.

How won the No. 1 event final Giovanni 13-8.

'Rasslin' Villains 'Howl' at Pavilion

Mr. Murder, Jerry Meeker
Polish Off McGill, Murdoch

It was the villains' turn to howl on the wrestling card Tuesday night.

And how they did. They also bashed some nice guys around, thereby winning every match in Boy Promoter Al Oomings' weekly show.

SLUGGING BEE

The affair was billed as an Australian vs. Canadian slug match. It would turn out to be a slugging bee.

Mills and Meeker required 16 minutes to win stage one. Mills subdued McGill with the Japanese straddle to put the villain one up.

The heroes squirmed back in great style. Finally, after 18 minutes, McGill put the finishing touches to Mills via a dropkick, plus the assistance of Murdoch and an unnamed sports writer.

The fourth estate became involved when Mills came hurtling into Press Row. The former released by administering a rabbit bite and pencil jab to a certain portion of Mills' 250-pound anatomy. It was damaging. Anyway, more back in the ring Mr. Murder was easy prey for "Paddy."

NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY
Frog Play was all Meeker dragged Murdoch within range of Mr. Murder's right hand. There was a moment when referee Wally Beaumont was having words with McGill. Mills slugged Murdoch—Frankie dropped like a thunderbolt. Meeker applied the body press. Beaumont counted the hero out.

As the president of the Frank Murdoch Fan Club put it: "Win was beat unexpectedly by surprise he didn't expect."

Texas Babe Sharkey, who once

COAST FANS TURN BACKS ON N.W. CUBS

NEW WESTMINSTER, Jan. 12.—(CP)—New Westminster Cubs of the British Columbia Senior "B" Hockey league Thursday met with another snag in their move to gain support from New Westminster fans.

Management of Queen's Park Arena threatened to deprive Cubs of ice for their regular Thursday night game unless a $50 guarantee is posted.

The move came as a result of poor support of New Westminster's senior "B" team. It was reported the arena collected a total of 46 cents one night, and 25 cents another time. Arena officials said it is impossible to meet all expenses with such little revenue.

Scotty Mills, Cubs coach said "I'm getting fed up with the whole setup."

held a world championship recognized in one region of the U.S.A., mauled Ted (Greek) Fouras in the semi-finals. Here Fouras found himself in Press Row on one occasion leaving Beaumont to grapple with Sharkey. The Babe topped Beaumont until the official looked like a dream walking.

Larry Jacobson, Dallas Out-

lete, and referee Cecil Goldstick traded grunts in the preliminary. The match was in the 20th minute of operations.

Close to 2,000 attended.

Boucher Proposes Break for Goalies

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Frank Boucher says it's time hockey goalies got a break.

The manager of New York Rangers and chairman of the National Hockey league's rules committee wants to change the sports rules to:

1. Extend the crease from three to four feet in front of the goal.
2. Make it illegal for an attacking player to come inside the crease at any time.

EASY TO SEE
These changes, Boucher said, would lessen possibility of injury to a netminder and provide clearer and closer goals for fans.

At present there is nothing in the rule book that prevents an attacking player from getting on top of a goalie and Boucher says it isn't fair.

WORRY THE GOALIE
"This has become a regular play in hockey. You take one of your big men and stick him in the crease, or close enough to worry the goalie, while a power play is in effect."

Boucher said he brought forward the proposals because a goalie has not enough room to work in. If the crease is not enough, he will try to have it made larger.

"Anything that will help the goalie is not rotten," said the 41-year-old Ottawa who has a star rating in his playing days.

WHAT'S COOKING? In a logging camp that's really an important question. No better authority to answer could be found than 64-year-old Edward Pedersen, veteran cook at Etter-McDougal logging camp near Winfield. Pedersen works from 4 a.m. to 7 p.m. preparing grub for 165 hungry loggers. He's been with the company 11 years.

Logging Camp Cook Sets Record for Long Service

When there's "rebellion" in a logging camp, the wise camp manager will make cook and kitchen the starting points of any investigation.

Because as army of loggers certainly moves on its stomach.

Out at the Etter-McDougal logging camp, west of Winfield, the company looks on a rory-cheeked Edward Pedersen as first class trouble insurance.

11 YEARS ON JOB

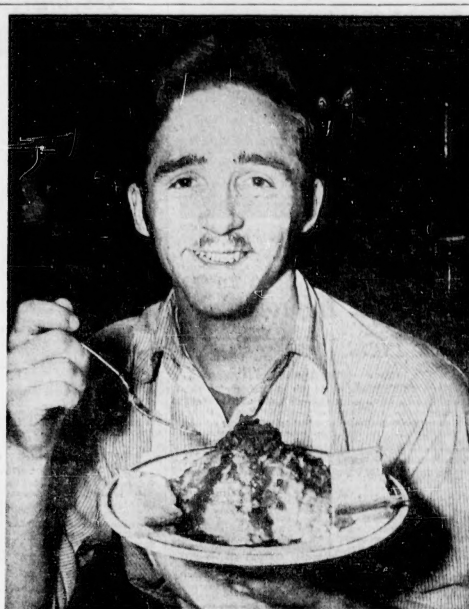

Danish-born Pedersen has been captain of the camp kitchen for 11 years. Veterans loggers will tell you this is probably a world record.

"Any belly brawler (Woodman's term for logging camp cook) who can last 11 years in one camp isn't just good; he's miraculous," is the tribute a veteran woodman paid Pedersen.

Pedersen is 64 years of age and he's still hale and hearty, despite GUEST SPEAKERS at the 13th annual meeting of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines and Resources in the Macdonald Hotel Tuesday were two men prominent in mining development in western Canada. They are R. W. Diamond (left) vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd., and Dr. Michael Fenik, resident dominion government geologist at Yellowknife.

WHEN A COOK will eat a heaping plate of his own cooking the fare served usually rates A-1. That's what second cook Albert Gagnon of Winfield camp is doing here. The St. Boniface-Frenchman calls this tempting dish a camp nine special. Pressed for details, he says: "A camp nine special is about 90 per cent beans." Gagnon has been working at the camp for two years.

NEW STATION FOR NORTH NETWORK

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—The army said yesterday it now has a sixth radio broadcasting station operating in the north, providing entertainment for military personnel and civilians in isolated areas.

"I take my holidays in the summer at my farm near Hostley," Pedersen says.

Cook Pedersen makes $200 a month and board.

"I could get more money at some other jobs nowadays but that is a good outfit to work for."

He does all of his own baking, which is really something when one considers the camp requires 65 loaves of bread per day. Fifty down rolls disappear in one day and 24 dozen eggs just serve one camp breakfast.

Pedersen attributes his good health and spryness at 64 down to not hitting the booze like many camp cooks do.

He has no thought of retiring. He's good for another 20 years, he says.

The army said yesterday it now has a sixth radio broadcasting station operating in the north, providing entertainment for military personnel and civilians in isolated areas.

The new station is the 100-watt station CFHR at Hay River, North West Territories, which takes its place with four other stations of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals: North West Territories and Yukon radio system. Others are at Whitehorse, Dawson City, Alkayik and Norman Wells. Another at Fort Churchill, Man., although serving the north, is not actually part of the system.

The new station has an effective range of 200 miles. On the air during the leisure hours of service personnel, CFHR has been confining its efforts to the broadcasting of recorded programs.

Individuals Placed First

Canadian industry must pay greater regard to the future of the importance of the individual human being and to relations between man and man.

R. W. Diamond, vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada, Limited, and president of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, voiced this warning Tuesday in the annual meeting of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines.

Mr. Diamond outlined the development of C. M. and S., with which he has been closely associated during the greater part of his career, and pointed to a moral which he gained from experience.

"The foremost lesson I have learned," he said, "is that the most important affairs in life have to do with people, not with things."

He suggested that, as in the past, the future will be determined by the individual in our society.

"I have learned," declared Mr. Diamond, "that regimentation and socialization are a negation of the individual."

"If we are ultimately to achieve harmony in Canada," he continued, "we must, in due course, sell ourselves and our industries to our employees. Our objective must be to gain the confidence and friendship of our employees."

Decoration Is Presented

Commanding officer of the 20th R.A.A., Lt.-Col. Royal Allan Harrison, M.B.E., was presented with the Efficiency Decoration at a regimental parade in Prince of Wales Armoury Tuesday night.

Making the investiture was Brig. H. E. Wright, E.D., commander of the First Army Group. Lt.-Col. Harrison at present is in command of the unit which has been on reserve in this area since the end of the war.

Accompanying Brig. Wright at the ceremony was Lt.-Col. George Weir, O.B.E., Headquarters, Western Army Command.

Signals Post Given To Col. W. Lockhart

Colonel William Wallace Lockhart, 45, of Edmonton, is the new director of signals at army headquarters, according to an announcement today by the Minister of National Defence at Ottawa. He succeeds Col. A. E. Winch, who will attend the 1949 course of the Canadian Army Staff College at Kingston.

Col. Lockhart has been serving as command signals officer at Western Command Headquarters, Edmonton, and his promotion from the rank of lieutenant-colonel coincides with his new appointment. Taking over from him in Edmonton will be Lt.-Col. G. K. Strach, M.B.E., 38, of Saskatoon and Amherst, N.S.

PIONEER OF SYSTEM

Col. Lockhart is a pioneer of the army far-advanced and efficient North-West Territories and Yukon Radio system. He enlisted in the ranks of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals in 1932, and during the following three years was in charge as a non-commissioned officer of the wireless station at Mayo, Yukon. He was commissioned in 1939 and went on to obtain his degree at RSC in electrical engineering at Queen's University in 1931.

During the next few years, until the outbreak of war, Col. Lockhart served in Edmonton at headquarters of the radio system and also took the staff course at Camberley, England.

In 1940 he commanded a company of 1st Corps Signals in the United Kingdom, was for a short while on the directing staff of the Canadian Junior War Staff Course there, and then took command of 2nd Canadian Divisional Signals in the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

In 1944 he was appointed secretary of 21 Army Group Joint Signal Board, and finally was signal officer at Field Marshal Montgomery's tactical headquarters. Since his return to Canada he has been serving in Edmonton.

Col. Lockhart has been inter-ested in being for many years. In 1944 he was a member of the Edmonton Flying Club, the Ottawa Flying Club, and the Hester Airport Flying Club in England.

Mrs. Lockhart will come with him to Ottawa.

Fire Death May Bring Changes In Fire Prevention

TORONTO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Investigation into the fire death yesterday of Robert Davies, 71, may result in changes in fire prevention services and possibly will lead to inspection and licensing of every boarding house and rooming house in Toronto.

Davies was suffocated in a fire in a rooming house on East-Central Jarvis Street just before Christmas. Four persons died when flames gutted a rooming house on mid-McMillan Street.

Mayor Hiram E. McCallum said he would recommend to board of control the inspection and licensing of every boarding house and rooming house in the city.

Actor, Model Wed
TEJANA, Mexico, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Movie actor Frank Keenan, 38, and Betty Jane Butler, 28, Los Angeles, were married yesterday.

Medical Defects In 2,502 Pupils

Quarter Of All In City Schools, Board Is Told

Medical inspections of 10,000 Edmonton school pupils during 1948, showed that 2,502 of them suffered from defects, according to a report presented last night at the regular meeting of the Edmonton Public School Board, by Dr. G. E. Swallow, medical inspector of schools.

Of those given complete physical examinations during the year, 2,100 of 4,110 were found to have some defects, major or minor.

The report for the year's work was presented to the trustees along with the report of medical inspections for December alone and for the six months' term ending with the close of 1948.

TONSILS AND ADENOIDS

Trustees noted a large number of pupils were suffering from enlarged tonsils and adenoids. Parents were informed when such a condition existed, Dr. Swallow said.

The board also heard a report on the number of fire drills held in the city's schools.

They noted with apprehension no fire drills were held at the University High School and afterwards.

R. S. Sheppard, school superintendent, explained the University authorities had feared such drills might disrupt the conduct of their own classes in the same building.

However, trustees, led by Mrs. M. E. Butterworth, told the fire drills at this school should be resumed and others agreed with her.

MOORE TRUANCIES

The board expressed itself as pleased with the work being performed by James M. Hordburgh, attendance officer. Mr. Hordburgh's report showed an increase in the number of truancies reported from the schools.

This is due, it was thought, to an increase in the school population and an increased and commendable tendency on the part of principals to appeal to the attendance officer.

Accidents to school pupils attending school totaled 51 for the term commencing September another report showed. The board considered the report briefly, but when chairman C. C. Macdonald suggested none of the accidents was particularly serious, the report was accepted without lengthy discussion.

ADVISORY BOARD

Formation of the advisory committee, which gives the board its opinion on technical training may be altered soon.

Applications had been received from the plumbers and steamfitters' union and from the electricians' union to have one of their number named in the advisory committee.

Board members feared the committee might become unwieldy and urged the Edmonton Builders' Exchange and the Edmonton Trade Union be asked to name three representatives each to the committee.

At present each trade union names a representative to the committee. Each trade union in the Edmonton schools, while the Builders' Exchange also names someone to represent the employers' interests in each.

The board boosted a request for $10,000 to buy books for supplementary reading to $12,000. It was felt the increase in the price of books and Edmonton's school population justified the expenditure of the additional $2,000.

Federal Cleo Law Validity Unknown

Supreme Court Gave Only
An Opinion—Not A Ruling

By George Kitchen

OTTAWA, Jan. 12.—(CP)—Is the federal law banning the sale and manufacture of margarine dead, or isn't it? And, if it isn't dead, what is going to happen to those people who are making and selling it in Toronto, Vancouver and other centres and who, even if only technically, are breaking the law of the land?

LOOKING a little bored to it all, Austin Wright, (left), model in the latest in beachwear for tots at Miami Beach Fla. It's a one-piece fuchsia tulle swimsuit with matching ruffled swimcap.

Both of these questions, say legal and constitutional authorities here, are complicated, legal knots.

The questions stem from the temporary legal situation created by the Supreme Court judgment last month on the validity of the 12-year-old blanket federal prohibition against margarine, oleomargarine and other butter substitutes.

Some people have been saying the law died when the judgment was uttered, others say it is still in existence.

LEGAL EXPLANATION

One legal authority explained it this way:

"The federal government submitted a reference to the supreme court asking for an opinion as to whether or not the prohibition—banning the manufacture, sale and importation of margarine—was illegal."

The supreme court gave an "advisory" opinion—that the law was unconstitutional and therefore illegal.

The court thus gave only an opinion, and did not make an outright ruling that the margarine law was illegal.

LITTLE TO FEAR

"The law technically remains in effect," said the legal authority, "however, if anyone contests it in the future, the supreme court decision is mind, undoubtedly will declare it to be ultra vires of the law actually never existed."

People making and selling margarine and "margarine" law have little to fear. The mere fact of their being prosecuted and the law being brought before a court would mean the end of the law itself.

President's Pay Boost Passage Likely Thursday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A bill to boost the president's salary to $100,000 a year was approved by the Senate civil service committee yesterday and is slated for probable passage Thursday.

The measure, approved 10 to 1 in the committee, also carries pay raises for the vice-president, cabinet members and other senior government officials.

In addition to raising the president's salary from $75,000 to $100,000 a year, the bill would give him a traveling expense allowance of $50,000. This would be in lieu of the $40,000 he now receives for travel expenses and White House maintenance.

Winnipeg Wages War On Criminal Comics

WINNIPEG, Jan. 12.—(CP)—The Parent Education Association of Winnipeg has condemned crime comic books.

The association passed a resolution at a meeting last night suggesting that the sale of such books be banned. Chairman Mrs. B. M. Davis said object of the resolution is not to ban comics entirely but to stamp out distribution of hard ones.

"Fifty of these have already been banned in New York state and 25 in the city of Detroit," she said.

Mrs. R. H. Sutherland, another member, said that it "is time we took action to protect our children against the unscrupulous work" of the publishers of such books.

The resolution adopted unanimously and to be forwarded to Justice Minister Gordon, called for prevention of sale throughout Canada "because crime comic provide a pattern of anti-social behavior in children."

Mrs. Sutherland, maintaining that two-thirds of all comics are devoted to crime, said the picture was to mix violence with sex and to have "the women deliberately sexy and curvy."

Another participant, Mrs. R. Curtis, described crime comics as "the worst of the worst."

AMERICAN ARRESTED ON TREASON CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(CP)—The United States justice department today announced the arrest in Germany of a former state department employee accused of treasonous wartime collaboration with the Nazis.

He is Herbert John Burgess, 52, a native of Hokah, Minn., who emigrated to 26 years in the United States embassy in Berlin as a clerk and economic attaché.

The justice department said that when the United States went to war with Germany in 1941, Burgess refused the opportunity to be repatriated and took a job with the German short-wave radio broadcasting in English to American armed forces.

Department officials said that since the war, he has shifted from one job to another in post-war Germany. The department plans to fly him back later this month, when a treason charge against him will be presented to a grand jury.

To date, 24 persons have been indicted for treason to the United States since the Second World War. 12 of them for enemy propaganda broadcasts.

14 CONVICTIONS

From these indictments, 14 convictions have been obtained. One defendant, Ezra Pound, noted poet who is alleged to have broadcasted for the Italian government, is in a mental hospital, following a psychiatric court finding that he was incompetent to stand trial.

Out of the names tried, one died, possibly by heart disease, charged with operating a wartime factory in Japan and maintaining American prisoners captured there.
